WORDS FROM THE SOURCE

Edited by Brad Steiger

This exciting and provocative Prentice-Hall release is Brad Steiger's latest exploration into man's ever expanding multi-dimensional world. The focus is based on the profound spiritual teachings of an Acclaimed American Mystic, LOUIS, and is directed towards the expansion of man's consciousness in the modern day world. It explores the questions that have been asked for eons, What is life all about? Who am I? Where am I going? Providing answers in terms of a spiritual roadmap for everyday living in this time of chaos and rapid change, WORDS FROM THE SOURCE offers a broad spectrum of practical, meaningful guidelines to expand one's horizons of awareness.

Such disparate topics as the lost years of Jesus, histories of antedeluvian civilization, organic remedies, and the function of the aura are all united by the main themes of Louis' teachings - If you can't share it, throw it away...it isn't worth keeping, each of us has the responsibility for his own spiritual evolution, a loving way of life is a must for mankind's survival in the New Age to come.

A good book for people at any level of awareness, readers will want to refer to WORDS FROM THE SOURCE again and again.

For an autographed first-edition copy, send $6.95 (plus 40¢ postage and handling) to THE LOUIS FOUNDATION, ORCAS ISLAND, EASTSOUND, WA. 98245

Editorial

There is a hunger in the human heart for beauty. There is a longing in the human soul for harmon and peace. There is a yearning in the human mind to aspire to the heights of wisdom, knowledge, truth and light. Beauty, harmony, peace, wisdom, knowledge, truth and light -- all these and more are available to those who seek. Are you a seeker? Do you walk the Path? Do you know the steps to take to satisfaction, fulfillment and enlightenment?

The secret, the key, is to TAKE A STEP. ACTION.

There are two ways for man to achieve his destiny, two ways for the human soul to open up to its own inner powers, the full expansion of the God-like genius within. The first, followed by most, is to drift along slowly, listening, reading, attending classes and lectures, studying, pretending to be involved. The other way, which takes more soul involvement, more time, more interest in the true awakening of the inner self, is the path of ACTION and SERVICE.

Action and Service! Yes, my friends. Sitting and listening and reading and studying will get you there, but on what might be called the "slow boat to China". You may reach your intended goal in this life time, but more likely it will be the next, or the next.

You don't have time for action, you say. No time for service. Have you ever watched a really busy person and all they accomplish? Have you ever really observed a person on the Path -- always ready, always responsive -- with inner knowing, inner satisfaction as the reward? Do you know that action and service take many forms?

Be willing to help when a need arises. Be aware that a need exists. Let your heart expand. Be kindly. Refuse to hate. Learn to love. Learn to forgive. Be yourself. Expand your sympathies; learn to be aware of others With a prayer at the right time, you can serve.

The next time you walk into a room -- a class, a church, a store -- try an experiment. As you walk in, pause and be aware. Be aware of those present. Be aware of the room. Be aware of why you are in that room. And as you become aware of these things, also be aware of the inner knowing within you of how you can serve this situation; how you can serve these people. At first, the answer may take time to come, but if you practice this simple technique, you will open doors that until this time have been closed to you. You will see people that you did not know were around you. and you will receive the most wonderful glow of inner expansion. You may even find the teacher and answers that you have been looking for.

Give with an open heart, with no expectation of return, and watch the results!

ALAN VAUGHAN

A Man For All Seasons

A researcher goes off to Europe under a grant from the Parapsychology Foundation to study mediumship and prophecy. In a dream laboratory in Brooklyn, a subject dreams about a picture someone else is concentrating on in a neighboring room. An experimenter describes objects disguised in sealed envelopes. A man sits in a shielded room with halves of ping pong balls over his eyes waiting for images to appear. Different kinds of experiments and activities, but all performed by the same man.

Alan Vaughan is a researcher, a psychic, a lecturer, a writer, and an editor of PSYCHIC, a prominent magazine devoted to exploring the nature of man and the universe. Alan is a prophet, a healer, and a clairvoyant. He works with psychokinesis (the influence of mind over matter) and with dreams. When his schedule permits, he teaches eight-week courses in Psychic Exploration at the Institute for the Study of Consciousness in Berkeley.

THE PSYCHIC Alan has performed all of the experiments described above, and more. The experiment using ping pong balls, called Ganzfeld, a German word meaning 'clear field', has become very popular recently. Alan usually sits alone waiting for images to appear, but the last time he tried it, the experiment was performed differently. While Alan sat waiting, a psychic in a different room held an object belonging to a missing person. The other psychic and Alan were trying to pick up impressions simultaneously. There was a lot of correlation in this experiment. Both psychics did pick up the same imagery simultaneously. Alan explains that this was not a case of one psychic performing psychometry and the other tuning in telepathically. Both psychics were linked in together to the object. It is Alan's theory that when two or more people can pick up the same imagery, it is far more likely to be correct. Alan and the other psychic used their own techniques to get information from the object, but they received and agreed upon the essential images.

Alan further explains how the psychics received their images independently rather than one psychic influencing the other. Together they formed a field of consciousness which dovetails and magnifies. Ordinarily a psychic will get both accurate and inaccurate information. But when several psychics join together, they are able to separate out inaccurate information. Those items the psychics agree upon are fairly sure to be accurate. Those items which are not agreed upon can be dismissed.

Other experiments for Dr. Gertrude Schmeidler, a top parapsychologist at City College in New York, brought forth the same results from psychics working together. In one experiment, dreams were written down by four people and placed in envelopes. Alan and four of his students attempted to describe the dreamer as well as the dream. Four others attempted the experiment at the same time. The attempts were judged by the four dreamers. The results were highly interesting. When Alan said something correct (as judged by the four dreamers), the students tended to pick up that information also. When Alan picked up inaccurate information, the students did not. The control group did not pick up anything at all. Alan doesn't know if anyone else is doing experiments like this, but he would like to see more done in this area.

In view of these experiments, Alan was asked how an individual can go to reader after reader and receive the same misinformation. Alan explains it this way. Depending on the personality structure, a person having a reading who has a strong, high ego will tend to project his or her own desires to the psychic. So the psychic will pick up and read back to the person his or her own desires, own hopes. It takes a lot of training and experience for the psychic to tell the difference, to be able to distinguish from what someone is desperately hoping for and what is actually going to happen. Alan likens it to two punched computer cards. Where the psychic and the client have a number of common experiences or common goals, the result is a good reading. But if there is not much of a match, the reading will probably be very bad.

Also, Alan thinks there is a physical basis for this. If a person is open and relaxed and probably somewhat psychic himself, he will have a more active psychic field and let it out. If a person is constrained, worried or skeptical, he tends to hold his energy in. And the psychic has a very difficult time.

Is a psychic performing telepathy, some form of mind reading, in picking up information on people? The public picks up this concept mainly from magicians who stimulate this idea on television, such as Kresgin. The general public doesn't have experience with the real thing. What a psychic does is to tie into a person's energy field which contains information about the past, present and future, which is not necessarily what a person is currently thinking. Certainly, in predicting the future, a psychic is not mind reading. There is an inner core of consciousness that knows. If Alan is successful, he gets into that inner core. If he is not successful, he has only reached the outer core of the individual's own ambitions, what the individual would like to have happen.

Alan has had experiences with people who try to block him, particularly scientists, because they don't understand how the psychic works. The scientist thinks it is strictly a matter of physics, or energy transfer, and does not realize that the psychological attitudes are far more important than any other thing. Others sometimes try to amuse themselves at Alan's expense to show that they can block his psychic abilities. Of course they can. In these instances, Alan tells them he is wasting his time, and he will not continue with them.

CAN PSYCHIC ABILITIES BE MISUSED? People can try to misuse psychic abilities, and they often do. But it is a two-edged sword. That misuse will come back on them and will probably result in their losing the ability. For instance, a person may develop the ability to see into the future, which may disappear if he tries to use it at the race track. But it may go even further. People can inflict some sort of psychic damage upon themselves. In this lifetime. Very nasty trauma. As Joan Grant has said, most people don't

Your Mind and Cancer Therapy

Patty Egan

An exciting new approach for the treatment of cancer has been launched at Unity of Palo Alto. By using the double-barreled method of "psycho-support", Reverend Dan Douglas and Carole Smith, an M.S.W. and certified yoga instructor, have created a healing activity involving various meditation and self-discovery techniques.

This healing-meditation group correlates with a two-year study by Dr. Carl Sinonton of Fort Worth, Texas. Dr. Simonton has made a definite connection between the positive mental attitude of the patient and positive response to the treatment of cancer. By using their minds to assist in the healing of their bodies, many patients have learned to live with the prolonged stress that Dr. Simonton feels is the real genesis of cancer. At a recent health symposium in Gainsville, Florida, Dr. Simonton made this statement about his mind-over-matter approach to treating cancer:

> I feel his (the patient's) beliefs about his disease, his treatment and himself are very big factors, having a significant role in the course that his body takes during and after treatment. If we look at cancer as a disease, most patients see it as synonymous with death; something from without that there is almost no hope of controlling. About the treatment, most patients have very negative feelings about treatment, whether it's radiation therapy, chemotherapy, or surgery. From extensive psychological experimentation in expectancy, I can't see how any thinking person can help but see the relationship between what a person believes will happen as far as his treatment and disease are concerned and the eventual outcome. The psychological experimentation concerning expectancy points strongly towards this.

It was Dr. Simonton's remarkable research along with the speaking appearance of prominent Monterey citizen Mrs. Gallatin Powers last March at the Palo Alto Community Center that sparked a tremendous interest in Unity of Palo Alto's participation and the resulting community response. Only a year ago, Mrs. Powers was suffering from advanced states of bone cancer. With the combination of the traditional treatment and the same meditation-healing techniques now being practiced at Unity, she is free from the advanced stages of her disease.

Presently, the cancer patients involved in this weekly two-hour healing activity have been reported by Reverend Douglas as making great strides in their attitude toward life and an improvement in their general state of health.

PSYCHIC RESEARCH and the BUSINESS COMMUITY

John White

Because of the enormous interest in psychic phenomena and psychic research, business people are asking if there is any practical spin-pff, or application, of the work being done in this field.

The answer is YES. Psychic research has deep implications for business and industry, and especially for management. But before I expand on that, let's take a brief look at the subject.

WHAT IS PSYCHIC RESEARCH?

Psychic research dates from 1882, when the Society for Psychical Research was founded in England. The American Society for Psychical Research began three years later. These organizations were started in order to look scientifically at a group of phenomena collectively called psi (pronounced 'sigh'), the first letter of the Greek word psyche, meaning 'soul'.

Parapsychology is the term for the controlled laboratory experimental approach to psi phenomena, stressing rigous statistical analysis, which Dr. J. B. Rhine developed in the 1930s.

Psi phenomena are classed into three categories; extrasensory perception (ESP), psychokinesis (PK), and survival phenomena. Each of these categories has many specific forms. ESP, for example, includes telepathy, clairvoyance, precognition and retrocognition. PK includes telekinesis, materialization and dematerialization, (the sort of phenomena that Israeli psychic Uri Geller is demonstrating on TV), levitation, thoughtography and psychic healing, (although some psychic researchers feel these are not all real phenomena). The category of survival phenomena is the 'spookiest', since mediumship, hauntings, apparitions, poltergists and reincarnation are all a part of it--(again, with some researchers not accepting all phenomena as real.)

Since its beginnings nearly a century ago, psychic research has made some very solid advances. It has also forged strong links with natural and social sciences, and is firmly a part of what we call 'modern science'. It was formally admitted to the American Association for the Advancement of Science in 1969, as a valid discipline employing strict scientific procedures. Psychic Exploration, which I edited for astronaut Edgar D. Mitchell, and which was recently published by G. P. Putnam, gives a comprehensive look at the field.

PSI IN THE DECISION MAKING PROCESS

But what will this mean directly to business people? One very important management function that may benefit, is the decision making process. Decision making is an art, not a science. Despite the careful studies and objective reports that executives and managers consider before deciding a business matter, at the end there will usually be a gray area calling for subjective judgment. Call if business sense, call it gut feeling, call it hunch, call it intuition, call it flashes of insight. Whatever the term, this phenomena is what operates in making astute, successful decisions, and what is lacking in others. This subjective factor is now known to be a form of estrasensory perception.

Specifically, it is precognition, the ability to predict the future in a way that cannot be rationally inferred solely from present knowledge.

EXECUTIVE ESP

This discovery is largely the result of research by two men at Newark College of Engineering, John Mihalasky and Douglas Dean. In 1962 they set up the Psi Communications Project there, to look at how ESP works and how to harness it in practical ways. In the course of their work, they developed a test for precognition. The test was given to business presidents and top executives who had doubled their companies' profits over the previous five years. It consisted of having to guess a 100-digit number which didn't exist at the time the guesses were made. The number was later generated by a computer using random number generating techniques.

In administering the test, Mihalasky and Dean attempted to correlate superior managerial skill, as measured by superior profit production, with superior precognitive ability. The result: a very positive correlation. Greatest precognitive ability was shown by those executives whose companies turned in the greatest profits. Mihalasky and Dean tell their story in Executive ESP, published recently by Prentice-Hall.

TRAINING HIGH-PSI MANAGERS

What can be said about the Mihalasky-Dean findings? First, the selection process by which people rise to the top managerial ranks is apparently a pretty good screening test for identifying high latent ESP. Second, this psychic faculty and others can be developed if a person will accept it in himself and attempt to train it.

Last of all, this sort of extrasensory guidance is not the property of business people alone. The founder of General Motors, Alfred P. Sloan, was described as a man who would proceed on a course of action guided solely by intuitive flashes of brilliance which proved astonishingly correct. But the same thing can be said about great scientists, inventors, philosophers, artists and writers, many of whom have recorded for history that theirworks have been due to inspired moments when creative flashes of insight burst into their awareness fully developed and apparently quite independently of any rational or logical thought processes.

Psychic researchers are looking at this intriguing relation between intuition, creativity and psychic powers. They are also looking at ways in which these faculties can be enhanced. We'll probably soon see training courses and resource facilities developed for helping business people 'get in tune' with their psi-creative nature, and these courses will become a standard part of management training and organizational development activities.

DEVELOPING THE WHOLE MANAGER

With that possibility in mind, I'd like to offer this final perspective on the matter. Psychic abilities, creativity and intuition don't operate in isolation from each other. They are all aspects of a still-vaster enigma called consciousness. If we are ever to under-

JULY 1 -22 LAKE TAHOE

TIBETAN MAHAYANA BUDDHIST MEDITATION COURSE, conducted by Lama Thubten Yeshe and Lama Thubten Zopa, Rimpoche.
The course will last from July 2, 1975, through July 22, 1975. Those students who have only two weeks will be permitted to leave on the morning of July 13 after breakfast. The meditation site will be available beginning the evening of July; students are expected to arrive then. Dinner that evening and lodging that night are included in the Course Fee.
Course attendance will be limited, and all will be expected to remain for the entire period and regard the Course as a complete retreat from outside distractions, attending every session punctually. Any two people attending the course as a couple are required to sit separately during discourses and meditations, and to stay in separate abodes. All men and women will be housed separately.
Emphasis of the course is on teaching the Buddhadharma in the Tibetan Buddhist tradition. Teaching, listening, contemplating and meditating are delicate activities requiring an environment conducive to their becoming successful, especially as there is much to be done in a very short time. The conditions at the Meditation Course are created with this in mind, and are created according to the Teacher's experience of past Courses, with which he adapted certain Tibetan traditional methods of teaching the Dharma.

Here is a book as complex and individual as you are. It's not light reading because it's your life, your astral biography, from the details of your inner feelings to your outermost ambitions.

Sun-Moon polarity, as the connection between conscious drives and unconscious feelings, is discussed at great length.

The ascending sign and its rulership position is interpreted as your personality, as your approach to life. Each house of the zodiac is described in terms of planets, rulerships and aspects.

This is not a vague report based on generalities. From your exact time, day, year and place of birth our IBM 370-155 sorts out 24,000,000 bits of astrological information. The result is a 12,000 word personal biography revealing secrets that even your closest friends would not dare talk about.

How is this possible? An astrologer does basically the same thing, but it takes longer and costs more. The computer is simply a memory bank. Only the information that applies to you and only you is drawn from the bank.

All this is yours for only $10. It's the best buy there is in computerized horoscopes. Plus a money back guarantee if your Astral Portrait isn't what you expected.

WORDS FROM THE SOURCE

Edited by Brad Steiger
$6.95

This exciting and provacative Prentice-Hall release is Brad Steiger's latest exploration into man's ever-expanding multi-dimensional world. The focus is based on the profound spiritual teachings of an acclaimed contemporary American mystic, Louis, and is directed toward the expansion of man's consciousness in the modern day world. It explores the questions that have been asked for eons of time, "What is life all about? . . . . Who am I? . . . . Where am I Going?" Providing answers in terms of a spiritual roadmap for everyday living in this time of chaos and rapid change, WORDS FROM THE SOURCE offers a broad spectrum of practical, meaningfull guidelines to expand one's horizons of awareness.

Louis is often called a 'psychic' or 'seer', is indeed a sensitive in the true sense of the word, whose ability takes him into dimensions far beyond this three-dimensional world to the "Source

His quiet moments of meditation in which the material is gleamed are similar to the trance-like states of the late Edgar Cayce, although his mission is quite different. Louis' emphasis is one of working with individuals and groups who are interested in expanding their consciousness and increasing their awareness so they can live in closer harmony with Universal Principles and Laws that they might become 'spiritual giants'. A picture is included in the book showing Louis in this level of awareness from which he perceives Universal Truths far beyond the ordinary understanding. Since the information id definite and precise, it can be related to the everyday world, to the destiny patterns and relationships of persons, places, and things.

Such disparate topics as the lost years of Jesus, "histories" of antedeluvian civilization, organic remedies, and the function of the aura are all united by the main themes of Louis' teachings - "If you can't share it, throw it away . . . . it isn't worth keeping," each of us has the responsibility for his own spiritual evolution, and a loving way of life is a must for mankind's survival in the New Age to come.

A good book for people at any level of awareness, readers will want to refer to WORDS FROM THE SOURCE again and again.

realize that they get paid back for their bad karma. And it is generally something that happened two weeks ago, not two lifetimes ago.

Alan thinks the military in both Russia and the United States are both going to soon be investing a lot of money into using psychic abilities for military applications. Trying to train people for espionage perhaps. Alan feels it won't work. By the time a person goes through the spiritual disciplines that are necessary to develop psychic abilities, his whole attitude will change. He will feel repulsed at the idea of using psychic abilities for evil purposes. Can an individual be forced to use psychic abilities for evil purposes? No, it doesn't work that way. The only problem might be that it is ambiguous whether a purpose is good or evil. What might be good to one person is evil to another. It is like the use of hypnotism, or even money. A person spending money for something he regards as good may have some very bad aftereffects that he hadn't counted on, that he did not mean to accomplish.

Alan thinks that man is in some ways like the sorcerer's apprentice who is beginning to get an idea about the powers of the cosmos. The apprentice may go through a period of erratic attempts to put his new-found powers to use. But finally, he will become at one with the master and help to achieve his own ultimate destiny that is already there in his personal blueprint.

ENTITIES Alan cautions people about venturing into dealings with outside entities. Nine times out of ten, there is a joker at the other end of the line. Whether attempting automatic writing or using a board, you want to be quite certain you know what you are doing. One way that you can't go wrong is learning to tune into inner wisdom. The chances are that you know just as much within yourself as any outside entity. Or at least you can tune into a higher consciousness by your own spiritual self. Alan has sat through many sessions held by trance mediums and read a lot of material which comes through. When it comes to wisdom, Alan can't really perceive much difference from what people find within themselves. Perhaps having a different perspective from another dimension is a help. But the hindrance is that the other entities don't really know what our lives are about; they are so far separated from our world. Even through the transition, other entities think differently. They have different value systems. And we are more closely into it, particularly with prophecy. Living people produce far better results prophetically zeroing in on times and future events than entities on the other dimension.

AUTOMATIC WRITING When he first began to develop his psychic abilities, Alan experienced automatic writing. Can he distinguish automatic writing (that which comes through other entities) and inspirational writing (that which flows from the higher self)? No, says Alan. There is no sure method to distinguish one from the other. In either case, judge it by its fruits. Most writings are from our inner selves. Inspirational writing can pour forth beautiful things or be very trite, depending on the writer's talents. Look at the results and ask if it is helpful. Or useful. Or beautiful. Use your common sense as well as your esthetic sense.

PSYCHOKINESIS Interested in bending laser beams or changing temperatures? Alan's interest in PK (the ability to influence physical objects or events by thought processes) began with his interest in healing. Now, with a group, he has been able to bend laser beams and to change temperatures recorded on a graphite thermometer inside a thermos bottle (called a thermister). Or how about influencing machines? Alan was able to call forth the same symbol 258 times on a computer programmed for five possibilities which would display from a random choice pattern. Alan has also experimented at UCLA for British TV successfully healing one leaf while a control leaf deteriorated. Thelma Moss has pictures of it in her new book. Alan is interested in investigating the energies at work -- ESP, psychokinesis. If we can discover how to control these energies, we could revolutionize not only the world, but consciousness for the greatest good.

PRAYER is the ability to commune telepathically with the cosmic entity to try to achieve an end. Prayer is a psychic ability. Prayer can work. But it depends. If person A and person B and person C are all saying prayers, the results are going to be very different. Alan uses a very short prayer. "They will be done. May my will be Thine." That prayer is to the cosmic energies of God, that His will be done. His will in the sense of encompassing the children. Let these children develop. Let them fulfill. Also, Alan wants to find his nitch in the cosmos. Then he is not only filling himself, but God's will.

WHAT IS ILL HEALTH? It is a number of things. The body not functioning properly. A child may be born without legs for instance. There is nothing you can do about it. But most illness, however, results from deficiencies in how a person looks at himself and how he relates to others. Guilt feelings or frustrations, anxieties, feelings of low worth, feelings of not accomplishing. All these are very potent factors causing disease, particularly cancer. There have been a number of medical studies showing that certain types of cancer tend to follow along with certain types of attitudes. And even very specific problems. Alan suspects that this extends to other types of disease as well. A person can minimize disease by regarding himself as a healthy organism in the fullest extent of the word, of rejoicing in life, and letting the cosmic energies flow through him. And this is also a step in helping others find their self-healing.

Alan has learned how to do healing -- the laying on of hands and absent healing -- and he is still learning. He works with groups of people and finds that very effective. The group has to know each other over a period of time to collectivize the consciousness and then to focus it. Not everyone is healed. A person himself must want to be healed, not only at the conscious level, but also at the unconscious. He must be able to forgive himself his guilt, his karma, whatever.

DEVELOPING PSYCHIC ABILITIES Alan believes that a person's psychic abilities can and should be developed. Psychic abilities can be useful if a person has the moral and spiritual use for them. In India, for instance, the Indians say that one should not develop ESP abilities and if any should happen to be developed in the process of meditation, these abilities should be ignored. The reason for this, Alan feels, is that when Indians do use their psychic abilities, they tend to use them to impress others, which is a means of obtaining power over people. Alan agrees that this is a very unfortunate use. Psychic abilities are to be used to help others and to aid our own endeavors in life. Psychic abilities can make enormous changes, can change the world.

There are many quickie programs for developing psychic abilities. Sometimes they may work in the sense that sometimes people do experience psychic abilities. But often, these people do not know how to handle their emerging abilities. They get into trouble. Alan prefers to see people develop SLOWLY so that they can acquire a firm spiritual base and also so that they can get acquainted with that aspect of themselves. With rapid, forced growth, people can get spooked, or badly frightened, or get themselves into bad situations.

Seeking psychic abilities is part of seeking one's own growth. It is not separate. Meditation is the main way of developing psychic abilities; also the main way of developing spiritual insight. Spiritual insight and psychic abilities often develop simultaneously. Alan advises seekers of psychic ability to go only as fast as their understanding and only as they feel secure within their spiritual selves. Don't rush. It is like trying to force the rose to bloom by ripping open the petals. You CAN damage proper development by trying to go too fast.

CAN INDIVIDUALS CHANGE THE WORLD? Well, an individual can change his world! Alan has seen that happen in his own life and in the lives of others. Alan has seen tremendous changes in a person's life when it suddenly comes home to him that he does not have to be at the mercy of the world. That he can fulfill himself and slot into his place in the world. And by fulfilling his place, his blueprint of what he can do, he can change his world. And this extends. That is how Alan looks at evolution, as concentric circles getting stronger and stronger, and wider and wider. And all of us linking up together until we merge into one circle.

HOW DOES ALAN SEE HIMSELF? Psychic, writer, lecturer, editor, Alan sees himself more as a teacher trying to awaken people to their inner talents, their potentials. His vision is to awaken people to the insight that spiritual knowledge is within. That what we call psychic phenomena are phenomena of the soul. That man by his very intrinsic nature goes beyond the physical body. That consciousness persists and can do anything. That because we are imprisoned in our physical bodies does not mean that we are limited to those bodies. Alan wants to teach us that we CAN HITCH OUR PSYCHES TO THE STARS.

...develop a part of man such as psi faculties, we must really understand and develop the whole of man--the mind--body relation of individuals and the relations of individuals to society. The psi capacity, when developed, tends to have an effect on other areas of thought and behavior. Likewise, the total development of a person can affect his psychic ability. Spiritual traditions from both East and West have long maintained that unless a person is ethically grounded and wise, he shouldn't attempt to use psychic powers because he probably will cause harm and suffering to others and himself.

What does this mean about the Mihalasky-Dean work? Although the emphasis was on developing new markets and anticipating new trends through ESP, I suspect that the high correlation between precognitive ability and profits may be partly the result of influences quite distinct from precognition--distinct, but related. The classic study of productivity at the Bell System's Hawthorne Works in Indianapolis, showed that production rose whenever management seemed to show an interest in its employees. Successful managers have intuitively employed this principle of psychology, even though they might never have heard of the Hawthorne effect. Increased productivity can mean increased profits. Therefore, something psychological, in addition to the parapsychological, may have been a factor in boosting earnings for the companies of the successful managers Mihalasky and Dean tested. Dean acknowledged this to me recently.

SPIRITUAL GROWTH, NOT PSYCHIC DEVELOPMENT

That 'something psychological' probably has two aspects. First is the specific act which employees recognize as management concern for them, such as the changes in lighting conditions carried out at the Hawthorne Works. The second is more general. It is a product of the total consciousness of a manager, and an indication of his spiritual growth. It is an attitude toward people embodied in a philosophy and the policies resulting from that philosophy. This sort of sensitivity and perception to employees as human beings--as whole persons, not just names and statistics--may be still another factor at work in the increase of profits. It is a sensitivity and perception akin to ESP, but nevertheless different from it. It comes from maturity, not psychic training. It comes from the integration of a person's total development, not the enhancement of one faculty.

Does this invalidate the Mihalasky-Dean studies? Not at all! It may mean, however, that the proper use of psi is not to 'make a buck' but rather to make business operations more humane, more fulfilling for employees and more responsive to societal needs. In the course of this holistic approach to people, it seems probable that productivity and profits will rise--just as Mihalasky and Dean found for ESP.

This is the perspective I hope the business community will adopt in considering psychic training for managers.
